Having a hard time getting started... here is an easy to follow beginner schedule that starts with 15 minute walks and will have you walking 60 minutes in 12 weeks. Warm up and cool down time are included in the scheduled minutes. Be sure to stretch after your walks. Everyone has a different goal. 60 minutes a day is good, especially if your goal is weight loss in addition to overall fitness. The American Heart Association recommends 30 minutes of moderate exercise 5 days a week for adults 18-65 years of age.

Consistency is key in creating a new habit, so be sure that you get something in at least 5 days a week. The starting day for this schedule may be changed to suit your needs. Just try to keep your easy and harder days in the same order. If you are particularly tired one week, don’t increase your time... just stick with the last weeks schedule.

It’s ok to take a day off once a week or choose a day to do some other form of exercise. This is called “cross training”. Choose one of the lighter days for this. As a beginner you may want to get the walking habit down before you add cross training to your routine.

It is natural to feel a little tired or have a few muscle aches when beginning a fitness program. Do not let this keep you from walking. On the other hand if you are in pain it may be prudent to take a day of rest. If the pain continues see a physician.

Getting started is as easy as walking out your front door. Use the schedule on the back as a guide to set appropriate goals.

The maps show some suggested paths to get you started. The paths are color coded with Green being easy. Yellow is still relatively flat but adds some distance. You can add Red and Purple to your walk when you feel you are ready for more. Purple adds some moderate climbing. Red adds some steep climbs and more distance to your walk.

Use protected crosswalks whenever possible, stay on sidewalks or the left side of the road and always watch for traffic. Do not walk after dark and if you can find a walking buddy.

Many people combine their walking with errands they have to do around town. The Yellow path takes you past the library, city hall, the post office and near downtown businesses.

There are other good trails near town. You can find 3 miles of paved trails at Empire Lakes (off Hull St. next to Southwestern Oregon Community College). On rainy days you might consider the Pony Village Mall.
